Trashedy

Two characters play in an acrobatic and clownish game. Madness and impudence. Delicacy and charm. A powerful mix of physical theatre, creativity and artistic impression. Combining movement, joy and high-risk stunts, this duo capture the audience's attention from the beginning.

Through the disciplines of circus, clown and improvisation, the protagonists try to overcome their difficulties, successes and mistakes. Ridiculous situations and laughter are the way to distract the public, in high-risk stunts, which put the attention at the top. The adrenaline flows with the story. In turn, fun and joy are present all the time, keeping the audience in suspense.

Federico Marotta and Soledad Moscoso

are a couple of acrobats and artists from Argentina. In 2018 they created Per Sé Company and in 2019 they premiered their first show "Trashedy".

In their creations they combine and fuse the technique of hand-to-hand and unicycle duo with humor, clown and improvisation, and use a language devoid of words, universal and understandable for all.

Since 2019 they have been participating in festivals and international events.

At the same time they are in continuous movement, working on new projects, creating and improving themselves as artists and performers.
